

ARREST OF LOS ANGELES EVANGELIST IS PROBABLE

OVER TWO AND A HALF INCHES OF RAIN LAST NIGHT

Swelled Streams and Added to Losses of the Farmers

A second heavy rain, in which 2.61 inches of water fell, visited this vicinity during last night, and added to the hard rain of Tuesday morning caused a marked rise in the stage of water in the Rock River and tributary streams, and added greatly to losses suffered by northern Illinois farmers as a result of the exceptionally wet month.

A big culvert on the River road west of the entrance to Adelheid park was washed out during last night's heavy down pour and the road closed to traffic. The deluge of water carried the culvert almost to the Rock river.

FOX RIVER IS HIGH

Aurora, Ill., Sept. 15—(AP)—As a result of rains of the last several days the Fox River has risen eight inches here. It is up over a foot at points north and is still rising.

Creeks are at much higher stage than usual at this time of year and many farms are waterlogged. There is a danger of a fifty percent loss on the corn crop of Kane and adjoining counties, the Kane County soil adviser, John Watt says. Oats and wheat have also been damaged as they were in the shock when the rains came and delayed threshing.

Charles Keiner, the Winnebago County soil adviser, says if frost should follow in the wake of the present wet spell almost the whole of the corn crop in his county will be ruined. Several weeks of fair weather are needed to mature the corn, he states.

MILAN HAD A FLOOD

Rock Island, Ill., Sept. 15—(AP)—Mill Creek at Milan, four miles south of here, went over its banks last night and flooded a section of the town. The water continued to rise today, and with indications of more rain it is feared it may go over the hard road embankment which protects part of Milan and maroon the whole town. The people were aroused from their sleep at 1:40 o'clock a. m., by the warning peal of the fire bell.

SPOON RIVER ON RAMPAGE

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 15—(AP)—A cloudburst at Wyoming, early today in which more than four inches of rain fell, sent Spoon river on another rampage today.

The river has been above normal for the past few days but the heavy downpour of this morning turned the stream into a treacherous swirling torrential flow, swirling down through the low lands and laying fields low and destroying all within its wide sweep. The cloudburst this morning lasted more than two hours followed by a steady rainfall until after daybreak.

No livestock is reported lost because of precautions taken in removing it to higher ground during previous high water. Crops are a total loss, three feet of water standing over low lands for miles.

Three Weeks of Warm Dry Weather Necessary

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 15—(AP)—Corn is maturing slowly due to wet fields making plowing almost impossible, said Clarence J. Root, meteorologist, in his weekly weather bureau report here today.

"Two or three weeks," said Mr. Root, "with warm weather will do wonders. Unthreshed grain is badly damaged although conditions are fair in the south third of the state."

"The heavy rains of last week, causing heavy damage through flooding, have filled the ground to the saturation point. Much corn is under water, or down as a result of soft soil."

Fruit Company Steamer Seized by Nicaraguans

New Orleans, La., Sept. 15—(AP)—A cablegram relating the alleged capture by General Sandoval, of the liberal party at Bluefields, Nicaragua, of the Cuyamel Fruit Company's steamer Dictator while it was loaded with arms, was received here yesterday.

BOY, 14 YEARS OLD, MAY HAVE BEEN AGENT IN MURDERING OF HIS FATHER. EVIDENCE SHOWS

Rupert, Idaho, Sept. 15—(AP)—That Weldon Crumroy, 14-year-old son of Carl Crumroy, unwittingly may have been an agent in the death of his father, proved the greatest sensation yesterday when the state laid the preliminary foundation of its case against Mrs. Mary Crumroy, whom it seeks to convict of first degree murder for the alleged poisoning of her husband.

The evidence, showing that young Crumroy purchased poison fly paper

MAN, BLEEDING TO DEATH, WAS FOUND IN CAR

Surgeons Saved Life of Rockford Baker Tuesday P. M.

Rockford, Sept. 15—Slowly bleeding to death from a deep cut in his right hip, William Lennon, 40 year old baker, was found in a boxcar near the Emerson-Brantingham plant Tuesday afternoon.

Lennon apparently injured himself when he fell while he was intoxicated, but he was so stupefied by liquor that he was unable to tell police how or where he received the wound.

Police removed him to Rockford hospital where the flow of blood was stopped. Lennon said two men, identified as police characters, helped him into the box car which was just outside the EBOCO plant limits. Employees found him there when they were returning to work.

"I have been staying at a hotel here," Lennon told officers, "but I don't recall the name of it. I hurt myself when I fell, but I don't know where that was."

When the ambulance arrived, Lennon was leaning against the side of the car. One wall and the floor were covered with blood. A rough bandage had been tied around the cut in his leg. Unless complications develop Lennon will recover, hospital authorities said.

EXPECT CANADA'S GOVERNMENT WILL RESIGN AT ONCE

Badly Defeated in Election Held in Dominion Tuesday

Ottawa, Sept. 15—(AP)—The impression in political circles today was that the Conservative government would resign as the result of yesterday's general election and that the Liberals would assume the reins.

The Liberals came out of the fight, which was bitterly contested from the Atlantic to the Pacific, with the largest group in the House, 27 more than the Conservatives.

On incomplete returns the standing of the parties was as follows: Liberals, 117; Conservatives, 90; Progressives, 11; United Farmers of Alberta, 11; Labor, 3; Independents, 2; doubtful, 4. Necessary for majority, 123.

Presumably Gov. General Byng will send for Mackenzie King to assume the reins of government.

Premier Meighen was defeated at Portage, La. Prairie Montebello, by E. A. McPherson, an old friend and former law partner.

All the members of Mr. King's former government who stood for election were returned.

Miss Agnes MacPhail again will be Canada's only woman member of parliament. She has been a member of the last two parliaments and was re-elected yesterday in Grey—South-east, Ontario. She is a Progressive.

Uncle Sam Ask Truce in Nicaraguan Revolt

Washington, Sept. 15—(AP)—The U. S. Government has asked the Nicaraguan government and revolutionary leaders to agree to a truce while peace negotiations are under way.

General Chamorro is understood to have expressed a willingness to sign a truce.

An embargo on shipment of arms to Nicaragua announced today by President Coolidge, was recommended by Secretary Kellogg on the ground that American exporters should not be allowed to ship munitions to Mexico while the United States was offering its good offices to restore peace there.

Coolidge Puts Embargo on Arms to Nicaragua

Paul Smith's N. Y., Sept. 15—(AP)—President Coolidge today issued a proclamation placing an embargo on the shipment of arms to Nicaragua. The step was taken by the Chief Executive in response to a recommendation made by the state department in view of local disturbances in the Central American country.

for his step-mother, was greatly minimized by cross examination. The boy declared his father frequently placed poisoned fly paper in water filled glasses.

Evidence yesterday tended to show that the defendant alone administered medicine to the sick man. It was also established that a life insurance policy of $2,000 was renewed, naming the defendant as beneficiary.

The state contends the poison alleged to have been given Carl Crumroy was distilled from fly paper.

"SELL ILLINOIS" THEME OF TALK BY LESTER COLBY

Illinois Chamber of Commerce Representative at Kiwanis Meet

"What's the matter with Illinois cities?" was the subject discussed by Lester B. Colby, director of publicity of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, before a small gathering of business and professional men at the regular session of the Kiwanis club at noon Tuesday. The speaker's subject was a broad one and in it, he very briefly gave some very interesting facts and figures. Selling Illinois to the world was his plan and he sketched the manner in which this is to be done by Illinoisans, who are to be the salesmen.

Mr. Colby is the writer of the series of articles "Rediscovering Illinois" which have been read with great interest in the columns of the Evening Telegraph for some time past.

Referring to these articles Mr. Colby stated that the work was not a sentimental undertaking by any means, but hard business, in which he had been travelling up and down the state for year and a half.

Told of Survey.

"The work is being conducted by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, which is interested in knowing why cities and villages and their residents grow or not. This survey has developed very interesting sales facts, which are vital in selling Illinois. The facts that have been developed are surprising. You probably do not know that there are more than 16,000 flowing oil wells in Illinois and that in this respect there are but seven other states in the union producing more oil than Illinois today."

"Five years ago, Illinois bore the reputation of having the worst road system of any state in the union. That was what you were told when you motored out of the state. Today, Illinois has the best roads of any state in the union, and let me tell you that you can sell Illinois on that one feature alone. It is up to the individual citizen to join this campaign of 'Selling Illinois'."

"Illinois has more total railway mileage than any other state in the union except Texas and that state is five times as large as this. Illinois likewise controls the two largest railway centers of the world. These are cold business facts that have been proven and can be effectively used by each of us in selling Illinois."

Shoe Factory is Old.

"In Dixon you have a shoe factory, which probably many of you do not know is one of the oldest in the entire state. This I give as but one fact in your local history."

"Manufacturers are crowding into Illinois and if a community has not secured more factories and enterprises in the last few years, let me say there is something wrong with that community. In Sycamore, not many miles from Dixon, fourteen new store fronts were built in the business section last year. Factories are locating at Sycamore and that city is on its toes and selling itself to prospective. Many other cities are coming to the front and are getting new industries. The factories are available, as they are crowding into Illinois for many well founded reasons. Manufacturers in the eastern coast states are searching out new locations in Illinois and it is purely up to Illinoisans to sell their own state."

"Illinois' wealth of ore is a most important thing that is often lost sight of. While we do not dig up any big nuggets of gold and may not rank with the metals of Colorado, still we excel in oil, coal, sand, gravel, cement and brick clay. Illinois has its natural selling qualities and it has been waiting for salesmen."

To Urge McAdoo to be Candidate in '28

Chicago, Sept. 15—(AP)—William G. McAdoo "will be urged to be a candidate" in the 1928 presidential race for the democratic nomination, but his candidacy has not been announced, George F. Milton, Chattanooga, Tenn., publisher, telegraphed the Chicago Daily News today from Madison, Wis.

Mr. Milton, who was vice chairman of the McAdoo pre-convention campaign of 1924, explained that he telegraphed to correct an impression that he had announced here that Mr. McAdoo would be a candidate, although saying he considered McAdoo "the best bet of the progressive wing of the party."

"I will urge Mr. McAdoo to be a candidate, but it is assured to say now that he will be a candidate," the telegram read.

Funeral Mrs. Anna Uhl Here at 1:18 Saturday

The remains of the late Mrs. Anna Uhl will arrive from Los Angeles, Cal., Saturday afternoon at 1:18. The body will be taken direct to Oakwood cemetery where a short service will be held and interment will take place.

ILLINOIS CREEK STREAM OF FLAME FOLLOWING BURSTING OF OIL PIPE LAST EVE

Bridges, Timber and Crops Damaged by Unusual Fire

Princeville, Ill., Sept. 15—(AP)—The countryside for miles around was attracted last night when North Creek, near here, was turned into a stream of burning oil. A break in two large pipe lines of the Prairie Oil Company, caused by the dumping of ballast on the Santa Fe Railroad right of way Tuesday, flooded the swollen stream with a heavy coat of oil, which became ignited when farmers set fire to protect the livestock from the oil polluted waters.

Started Bad Fire.

In so doing they launched a flood of flame that swept along a stretch of country seven miles long and a mile wide, doing tremendous damage to timber and to bridges before it burned itself out this morning. The fire burned all night while scores of farmers and volunteer firemen from Princeville, Wyoming and other places along the flame swept area fought to protect bridges and keep the flow from reaching the Spoon river, where a new flood sweeping down the valley toward Brimfield, Canton and Lewistown promised disaster if the flames rode along.

Bridges Burned Out.

One bridge two miles north of Princeville was partially destroyed and another six miles north was completely destroyed while numerous cultivated, creek crossings with wooden floods or supports were burned out or damaged.

As far as can be learned, no farm buildings were fired but damage to crops and timber bordering the creek is reported considerable.

The oil, estimated in aggregate of close to three million gallons, escaped from the broken pipe lines, a third eight inch main escaping the blow of the ballast.

Oil line workers from Galesburg were sent here this morning to repair the damage to the pipe line.

Ku Klux Klan Plans to End Annual Convocation

Washington, Sept. 15—(AP)—The Knights of the Ku Klux Klan prepared today to conclude their third biennial convocation with action on the report of the order's resolutions committee.

The sessions reached an impressive height last night at a memorial service in honor of the Klansmen who died the past year, especially those killed in the Herrin riots and others who met violent deaths. The dead were symbolized by a draped casket set on the stage with a cross of red flowers beside it.

The memorial service followed a business session at which Dr. Hiram W. Evans, re-chosen Imperial Wizard of the order, outlined his platform for the next four years by recommending that the Klan adopt as its first objective the saving of America from "alienism."

Dixon Commission to Attend Meeting

Mayor Frank D. Palmer and the members of the city council will attend in a body a meeting of the Illinois Municipal League to be held in Rockford next week. At last evening's meeting of the council, Mayor Palmer was elected to represent Dixon at the meeting and he invited all of the members of the council to be present.

Property owners on North Dixon avenue appeared before the council, asked that culvert be installed on that street to care of storm water.

The board of local improvements voted to issue a voucher in favor of the S. D. Hicks Construction Co. of Moline, in the sum of $16,000 for work done under local improvement ordinance No. 2244.

Roxie Stinson Tells of Recent Marriage

Washington Court House, Ohio, Sept. 15—(AP)—Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of the late Jess W. Smith, who gave sensational testimony in the senate during the Daugherty investigation, was married at Covington, Ky., Sept. 3, to Philip E. Brast, an oil operator, she announced today on her return from New York.

DIXON LEGION ASKS COUNTY TO HELP PURCHASE CEMETERY LOT FOR BURIAL OF POOR VETERANS

The board of supervisors were appealed to at this morning's session to assist the Dixon Post of the American Legion in the purchase of a lot in Oakwood cemetery to be used for the purpose of burying ex-service men who are without funds or relatives. Attorney Robert Warner appeared before the board with the request, which met with the general approval of the body.

The Post now has one lot, which was donated by the city, for this purpose, and on which two interments have been made. An adjoining lot is available and the board was appealed to appropriate a sum of $124.13 for this purpose. The matter was referred to the Soldiers and Sailors committee to report at this session.

The contract for the furnishing of supplies to the county home near Elmhurst was awarded to Roy Plovman of this city, his being the lowest of three bids submitted, $224.93. The members of the board, county officers and the Board of Review will enjoy a catfish fry at the Elks club this evening.

JONES MET JONES AND EXCEPTIONAL GOLF WAS RESULT

Champion's Namesake Today Forced Him to Limit to Win

Short Hills, N. J., Sept. 15—(AP)—Bobby Jones of Atlanta, aiming for his third consecutive national amateur golf crown, was carried to the 18th hole to win his first round match today at Baltusrol against Dick Jones of New York, 1 up.

Coming to the home green with an advantage of only one hole, after an uphill fight, the champion was compelled to bring off a birdie four to prevent the contest from going an extra hole.

The match was one of the closest and most exciting in Bobby's career as a champion.

Bobby had a medal score of 77 his highest of the tournament thus far. Dick was over the 18 hole route in 79.

George Dawson, Chicago, defeated M. L. Massingill, Fort Worth, Tex., 1 up; F. J. Bright, Boston, defeated Lauren Upson, Englewood, 1 up; Chick Evans, Chicago, won over William C. Fowles, Pittsburgh, 2 and 1; William Reekie, Mont Clair, defeated Paul Haviland, Bridgeport, 1 up.

Marston is Defeated

Max Marston of Philadelphia, former title holder, was defeated in one of two sensational extra hole battles, during the opening match round, losing on the 22nd green to Maurice McCarthy of New York.

Marston bowed in defeat after an exciting up-hill struggle during which he fought his way to even terms with the New Yorker after being two down on the eleventh.

The match was finally decided on the short 22nd of 126 yards where Max hooked his iron into a deep sand pit. His recovery was 15 feet from the pin and he failed to sink his first putt. McCarthy, on from the tee, was well up on his approach putt and the Quaker entrant conceded the hole.

Chicagoan Survives

Rudy Knepper of Chicago survived another exciting duel, defeating Dexter Cummings 1 up. J. W. Platt of Philadelphia won over Keefe Carter, Oklahoma City 4 and 3.

Jesse Guilford, Boston, eliminated the New Jersey junior champion, Eugene Homans 3 up and two to play.

Eddie Held, St. Louis, eliminated D. C. Corikran, Philadelphia, 2 and 1.

Two more favorites came through when Eustace Storey, British glar, and Francis Quimet, Boston veteran won their matches at the home hole one up. The former won over Desmond Shute, West Virginia, and Quimet defeated R. M. Moe, Portland, Ore.

Suffering the same fate he met a year ago at Okauchon, Aoland Mackenzie, Washington, D. C., was eliminated by M. B. Stevenson, Chevy Chase, Md., 2 and 1. Watta Gunn, Bobby Jones' Atlanta pal, survived a nip and tuck battle against Jack Westland of Seattle, Wash., 3 and 2.

Entire Income of Couple is Husband's

Washington, Sept. 15—(AP)—Twenty one appeals from California taxpayers, who had filled separate community property tax returns, were overruled today by the Board of Tax Appeals which sustained a previous ruling that the entire income of a couple belonged to the husband and that a higher tax was payable.

WET LEADER BEATEN

Baltimore, Sept. 15—(AP)—U. S. Senator Orville Weller forged ahead of Representative John P. Hill, leader of the "wet bloc" in the primary fight for the republican senatorial nomination, in which the county unit plan of voting decides the contest. Weller appeared to have taken 58 of the 147 seats. Hill has 50 and 39 still are in doubt. Popular vote from 929 of the 1,184 precincts gave Weller 28,952 and Hill 17,242.

BROUSSARD IN LEAD

New Orleans, La., Sept. 15—(AP)—U. S. Senator Broussard, seeking re-nomination, led former Senator Sanders by 89,622 to 77,323 votes today on returns from 1,124 of 1,329 precincts.

Dr. J. H. Kennedy Left Today in his car for Champaign-Urbana, taking his daughter, Miss Rachel, and Miss Marie Worley to the University of Illinois, where they will be students this year. They were accompanied by Mrs. Worley and Mrs. Kennedy.

BADLY HURT AS HE PROTECTED A GIRL FRIEND

DeKalb Man Suffered Fractured Skull in Accident

DeKalb, Sept. 15—Reports from the hospital here are that Sam Barnes, 30, who is suffering with a skull fracture as a result of an automobile accident over the weekend, are not as encouraging as the members of his family desire.

Mr. Barnes was severely injured as he attempted to prevent Miss Isabelle Larson from being cut by glass as the machine in which they and Miss Bessie Barnes were riding crashed into a tree. Miss Isabelle Barnes also was seriously injured, suffering several bad cuts about the head and body.

The accident occurred as Miss Isabelle Barnes, who was at the wheel, drove the car into the ditch to avoid hitting another machine. A driver coming off a cross road is said to be responsible for the accident, which occurred east of this city.

INSPECTION OF CHIMNEYS NOW, COFFEY'S PLEA

Fire Chief Makes Recommendations to Prevent Fires

"Now is the time to look over chimneys," said Fire Chief Thomas Coffey to The Telegraph today. Residents of Dixon should not wait until it is time to start coal fires in the stoves or furnaces, before this matter is given attention. Many roof fires result from chimneys not being looked after at the proper time."

The fire marshal also stated that after the leaves start falling that it is a fine plan to keep the gutters about a house free from such things, as they catch fire easily from a hot piece of roof, coming from a burning chimney. Oftentimes these leaves set fire to the edge of the house and then the roof.

If, when the roof is damp, after the fires have been started, a chimney burns out, there is little danger of a roof catching fire, the chief explained. Soot, as it comes from a chimney is generally hot, and if it lights on a shingle that is dry it takes but a moment or two until the shingle is afire. One shingle catching fire often ignites the entire roof.

Roof Fires Soon.

The season for roof fires is rapidly approaching and the head of the fire department is going to make an inspection about the city of some of the older dwellings. He asks that people who may be undecided as to the condition of the chimney, call the station, and he, or the captains of the platoons, in fact any of those on the force will be able to decide.

A chimney that is built from the ground up, passing through an attic oftentimes gets dry and the mortar leaves the brick. This will allow a spark to seep through between the brick, and unless an attic is kept cleaned, there is apt to be serious trouble.

Some of the most serious "inside" fires have started from a worn-out chimney, sparks leaking through into an attic that was overloaded with combustibles.

The city has a splendid record thus far this year and it is the hope of the chief that it will be possible to maintain it the remainder of the year. It can be done, he states, if people will use a little extra precaution.

District Bar Meeting at Rockford, Sept. 24

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 15—The annual session of the district bar association will be held in the city Friday, Sept. 24, and plans are being made to present one of the most interesting programs ever given by the association.

Attorneys from the sixth supreme court district which comprises Winnebago, Stephenson, McHenry, Whiteside, Carroll, Jo Daviess, Boone, DeKalb, Kane, Lee, Ogle and Kendall counties will be present and the meeting will be presided over by Judge Fred E. Carpenter of Rockford.

MEETING AT EXPERIMENTAL FIELD TOMORROW WILL DRAW FARMERS FROM THIS SECTION

Most of the farmers in this section of the state are expected to attend the field meeting to be held at the Dixon Experimental Field, west of the city on the Lincoln Highway, tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, conducted by members of the University of Illinois experimental staff in cooperation with the Lee County Farm Bureau.

Following is an outline of the results that will be presented at this field meeting:

This field was established in 1910

McPHERSON CASE REOPENED AFTER STORY OF "HOAX"

New Charges are Made Against Los Angeles Woman Preacher

BULLETIN.

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 15—(AP)—District Attorney Keyes announced today to determine whether he shall order the arrest of Almee Semple McPherson, evangelist of Angelus Temple here, following the developments of the last two days in connection with her disappearance May 13 to June 23.

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 15—(AP)—District Attorney Keyes today reopened the Almee Semple McPherson kidnapping investigation as a result of new charges that the story of the evangelist's disappearance last May was a hoax.

Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman Sleafaff, a seamstress, who declared she received money from Mrs. McPherson, was scheduled for further questioning today. She is being held.

Mrs. McPherson admitted employing Mrs. Sleafaff in an effort to obtain evidence to disprove reports that she occupied a cottage at Carmel with a man identified as Kenneth G. Orniston, former Angelus Temple radio operator.

Mrs. Sleafaff is credited with starting the present investigation with her statement that she was the mysterious "Miss X" who stayed with Orniston for ten days.

Another "Confession"

As the official investigation gained headway, the Times today published a purported confession by Miss Bernice Morris, secretary of the late R. E. McKinley, blind Long Beach attorney that Mrs. McPherson negotiated with them to produce the mythical kidnappers. The blind attorney was killed in a recent automobile accident.

Keyes indicated he would again review the evangelist's story from the time she disappeared until she reappeared five weeks later at Agua Prieta, Mexico, to tell of her escape from two men and a woman who held her prisoner in a Sonora Arizona desert shack.

Another element of mystery was added yesterday when Mrs. Elizabeth Frame, close friend of the woman pastor, revealed that a "Mr. Young" was accustomed to telephoning Mrs. McPherson during her frequent visits to the Frame beach home at Venice. The identity of "Mr. Young" is unknown to her she added.

Fred E. Erb Died at Peoria Tuesday

Fred W. Erb, a resident of Dixon for a number of years, who of late years had made his home with his daughter, Mrs. A. J. Journey of Peoria, died at her home Tuesday as the result of a stroke of paralysis. Word of his death was received last evening by Dixon relatives, the message further stating that funeral arrangements would be made later.

Mr. Erb was born in Peru, Ill., May 24, 1854, where he grew to young manhood, received his education and where he was married in 1875 to Miss Anna Ramsey. He is survived by his widow; two daughters, Mrs. A. J. Journey of Peoria, and Mrs. A. J. McCrystal of Dixon; a son, William E. Erb of Gary, Ind., a sister, Mrs. Theresa Hardin of Riverside, Calif.; and five grandchildren, John and Jeanne Journey of Peoria, and Dean, Robert and Helen McCrystal of Dixon.

Stolen Sterling Car is Found in Aurora

Fred Rosch's Hudson brougham, which was stolen from the Best garage in Sterling two weeks ago when that place was robbed and W. E. Llewellyn, Ralph Scott and Harry Shuman, were taken to a point north of Drews Corners, tied hand and foot and left by the side of the road, has been recovered.

The car was found abandoned on the streets at Aurora, Ill., on Saturday. The Illinois license plates had been removed and a set of Missouri license plates were on the car. It has not been learned in what condition the car was when found.

WERE GUESTS AT DINNER IN MORRISON—

The Morrison Sentinel says—Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Kratz entertained at a 6:30 o'clock dinner Saturday evening in honor of their son Krohn and wife who recently returned from their wedding trip. Those present from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Coppins and daughter Lois of Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Reed of Freeport, and Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Kratz of Sterling.

Hartzell-Hare Wedding This Morn.

A pretty wedding was quietly solemnized this morning at 8 o'clock at the parsonage to the Nachusa Lutheran church, the pastor, Rev. D. P. Heltzel, pastor of the church officiating at the wedding which united in marriage Miss Helen I. Hartzell of Nachusa and Charles W. Hare of Steward, Ill.

The bride couple were attended by Miss Gertrude Earles as bridesmaid and by the bride's brother, Charles F. Hartzell, as best man.

The bride wore a stylish traveling suit in blue and her bridesmaid wore a suit in the new channel red. Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left in their car for Gettysburg, Pa., where they will visit for three weeks, and on their return to this vicinity Mr. Hare will resume his occupation of farming. Mrs. Hare is a charming young woman whose many friends join those of the bridegroom in wishing them every happiness. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hartzell of Route 5, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hare of Steward, Ill.

A few weeks ago Miss Annabelle Hartzell and Theodore Pitzer were married. Mrs. Pitzer being a sister of the bride. They also went east on their honeymoon.

A picnic supper was enjoyed and a pleasant evening followed, with no stated program.

A WOMAN'S DAY ABROAD

Paris, France—"And of course, you will come back for the openings!"

I heard this anvil chorus so loudly as I prepared to shake off the gilded dust of Paris from my ample shoes, that it began to sound like a warning.

"The openings" began to sound almost as important as a clam opening with everyone trying to build the biggest pile of shells outside, and an equally big mound inside.

And it never occurred to me that attending an "opening" wasn't as simple as paying admission fee to a movie and sitting down therein.

So Pansy Herring Pretzel and I have trekked back across the foaming main to Paris and the "openings."

Wouldn't Have Gone

I only rise to remark that if we had suspected that attending an "opening" was as difficult a process as attending a presentation at court, we would still be in Holland listening to the windmills squeal, and trying to tell real Delft from imitation.

It seems that one must be a somebody to attend an opening. One must have antecedents. One must have a sugar daddy who gives bond that he intends purchasing his little sweetie no less than one billion dollars worth of opening frocks.

A mere reporter is up against it, being neither a somebody nor having sugar daddies. But there is the magic name of publicity.

It took three days, then the little engraved, gold-edged "opening cards" began to arrive by uniformed messenger.

He had so many buttons and looked so haughty that one wondered if full evening dress and the family pearls were required to be ill-faith.

We risked the rhinestone brooch and a taxi in lieu of the paternal limousine and went to the first opening.

Ritz? Well, maybe! A muted orchestra behind palms, three maids to each pair of gloves, orangeade made with real fruit with the left hand in.

Perhaps the gentle readers wish to know what I learned about winter fashions from the openings.

Much, much blue, delft blue, mulberry blue, plain blue, and blue with white!

Black and white combines are very prominent, especially velvet and satin or broadcloth and satin.

An new purple with a dash of red in it, and orange and henna shades burn brightly.

Skirts Still Straight

Sleeves make the gown. Great flowing, embroidered, beaded, belted, confections, drawn into a wristband.

The sports idea reigns. Little short coats of velvet and cloth are combined with sport checked or novelty sport skirts. The brown and rust shades are seen combined in sport clothes most frequently.

The annual attempt to make skirts something other than straight, necessary things, is seen again. Turkish skirts, tiered and flared skirts, ruffled skirts. But the houses with the best known names employ the straight skirt in the main.

Velvet is a bellinger. Plain velvet in a hundred shades, and polka dotted and novelty pattern velvet.

Evening gowns of soft laces and chiffons are seen more often than stiffer broche and satin things, and wraps of metal cloths with the full Mandarin silhouette and draped skirt are shown in high shades of orange, rose, and jade blues and greens.

Dark blue is combined with dashes of the reds in many street frocks.

Length? Shorter than ever! The calf positively went twinkling!

Menus for the Family

BREAKFAST—Baked pears, cereal, thin cream, codfish balls, corn bread, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Corn soufflé, cabbage salad with sour cream dressing, whole wheat bread, jelly, prune pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER—Casserole of macaroni and beef, creamed peppers, tomato and cucumber salad, peach cream pie, graham bread, milk, coffee.

Corn soufflé is a delicious, hearty luncheon dish but also makes an unusually good vegetable entre for the company dinner. Children as young as five years may be allowed to eat this dish.

Children under ten years of age should be served cabbage very finely minced and seasoned with lemon juice, salt and a bit of sugar.

Corn Soufflé

Six ears corn, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, 4 tablespoons butter, 12 cup milk, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, yolks 2 eggs, whites 3 eggs.

Score corn through center of each row with a sharp knife and scrape out pulp. Melt butter, stir in bread crumbs and milk and cook, stirring constantly until smooth. Add corn and cook a few minutes longer. Season with salt and pepper and add yolks of eggs beaten until thick and lemon colored. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry and fold into corn mixture. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake thirty minutes in a moderately hot oven. When firm to the touch, the soufflé is done. Serve at once or it will fall.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

JELLY TARTS

Tarts made of left-over pie pastry and filled with currant or grape jelly, make a delightful tea time accessory.

TO ARRANGE FOODS

In arranging foods in the icebox, place those oftenest used on the top shelves, and the others lower down, where they are not so easily reached. Place left-overs in the smallest possible jars and bowls, to conserve space.

CRISP CEREALS

Flaked and puffed cereals should be crisped in the oven before serving, especially in warm, moist weather.

ICED TEA

Iced tea is much better in flavor if made just before serving and poured steaming hot over the ice at table. If allowed to stand and cool, it becomes flat or bitter in flavor.

CARAMEL ICE CREAM

For caramel ice cream, no flavor is so good as the real caramelized or burnt sugar, which has been melted in a frying pan, and stirred constantly.

WET SHOES

Wet shoes must be wiped dry and placed on forms, not too near the stove or other heating apparatus. Heat will make them crack and lose their shape.

KITCHEN PAD

Few devices are so important to the housewife's comfort as the kitchen note book, hung with its pencil where she can note things to be ordered, as she thinks of them.

ROYAL FAMILIES OF SWEDEN AND BELGIUM TO BE JOINED—

Stockholm, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Princess Astrid of Sweden and Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium will soon become engaged to be married says the Dagens Nyheter. The newspaper adds that the Crown Prince will leave for Stockholm next week.

WOMEN'S BIBLE CLASS TO MEET TO CAN FRUIT—

The Women's Bible Class of the M. E. church will hold an all day meeting at the church Friday to can fruit for an Old People's Home in Chicago. All members are urged to attend and assist.

Phillips Family Held Reunion

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Phillips, located at Yorty's corners, was the scene of a very pleasant gathering, Sunday, September 12th, when members of the Phillips clan to the number of seventy gathered to renew family ties and recall the days gone by.

It was also the celebration of the 8th birthday of Mrs. Brinkley Pierce the oldest living member of the clan. Not many families are permitted to enjoy life together as long as Aunt Jane and Uncle Brinkley Pierce.

Uncle Brinkley will soon be 88, he is also one of the few of the Civil War Veterans and while here attended the 22nd reunion at Franklin Grove. Both Mr. and Mrs. Pierce are enjoying good health and on their return to Cedar Falls are planning to go to California.

Uncle Ben Phillips who is also in the eighties he and his good wife, both in good health live at Eldora. The other two members of the original family who attended were Mrs. Anna Wright and Mrs. Susie Chapman. Another sister lives at Lewiston, Idaho, but was unable to be present.

At noon a bountiful dinner was served from the well filled baskets of all who came.

The afternoon was spent in visiting and the singing of old songs. This was the ninth gathering of the Phillips clan and while at each gathering the members of the Phillips family, that is the family of John and Mary Phillips are getting fewer, nevertheless the spirit of good fellowship still remains and each one goes home benefitted by these gatherings.

Those in attendance were: Brinkley Pierce and wife, Cedar Falls, Iowa; B. F. Phillips and wife; I. A. Phillips and wife, E. C. Bergthil and family, Eldora; Clyde Phillips and family, W. W. Phillips and son, Fred Krehl, Franklin Grove; E. F. Chapman and wife, P. E. Chapman and family, Jacob Raymer and wife, D. V. Lechman and wife and Russell Reed, Ashton; Mrs. Anna Wright, Paul Glosser and family, S. M. Hamaker and wife, Fay Reed and family, Mrs. Floyd Daubs and son, Frank Chapman and wife, M. W. Glosser and family, Mrs. Charles Stacy of Rochelle; A. Burritt and wife, Chana; M. M. McDowell and family, Rockford; James Carmichael, J. H. Confer and wife of Lindenwood; Jacob Smith and wife, Holcomb; O. L. Grimes and family, Mrs. Anna Pierce, Lyman Sampson of Oregon and Eva Chapman of Chicago.

FASHION HINTS HAND BAGS

Hand bags are more ornate than ever, and are often trimmed with semi-precious stones, such as carnelian, jade or matrix.

LONG SLEEVES

Most afternoon and dinner dresses have long sleeves.

COLOR CONTRAST

Attractive necklaces to give that touch of pep to the fall costume are made of alternate beads of crystal and carnelian. Often there are earrings to match.

LOUISIANA LITERACY.
The state of Louisiana deserves praise and increased respect for its educational activities of recent years. In 1910, the value of all its school property (for white children) was only $2,150,000, a sum no greater than has been spent on single high school buildings in many other parts of the country. At that time, too, 17.3 percent of the white population was illiterate, and 61.1 percent of the negroes.

In the quarter-century since then Louisiana has waked up. Both white and black illiteracy has dropped nearly half. In 1925 the state spent about twenty times as much on education as in 1900; the value of school property had risen from a little over two million to nearly forty-one million dollars.

The school session has been increased from 120 to 170 days. Today 70 percent of the teachers have college or normal training; 25 years ago only 30 percent had such training. Per capita expenditure has risen in the same period from 85 cents to $11.03.

The percentage of illiteracy at any given time in a community naturally measures past negligence, while present educational activity will show its results best in the next decade or so. Louisiana has magnificent physical advantages for commerce and finance. Within the next twenty-five years it will have the fine leadership of educational men and women, backed by a literate population.

Prince Started Pink Shirt Style in Paris
Le Touquet, France, Sept. 15.—(AP)—The Prince of Wales launched a new fashion when he stayed here during part of his summer vacation. The Prince was seen one day to leave the Golf Hotel wearing a pink shirt which had the sleeves cut off at the elbows. The Prince played a round of golf in this cool garb, and the news spread like wild fire.
The next day the shops in Paris Plage were raided for pink shirts, which appeared on the golf links with the sleeves cut short, but the supply of pink shirts was not equal to the demand, and the next day telephonic and telegraphic messages were sent to London ordering pink shirts by the hundred weight, to be sent to Touquet by airplane. They have since been all the rage, and the idea has been taken up even by the women players.

Every academic activity is represented and the authorities maintain an unfailing courtesy toward students from foreign schools.

Her Own Way.
A STORY OF A GIRL OF TODAY
JUDY'S OPINION
John Meredith looked so bewildered when I told him he had an ingrowing soul, that I laughed. Instantly his face became suffused with red.
"Why do you laugh," he asked. "Of course, I know that I am many things but I did not know that I was a laughable object."
"You're not," I said laconically. "I laughed because you looked so helpless in your surprise, that anyone would have the temerity to tell you, of all men, that you had no reason for being miserable."
"But surely, you must see, this and this," sticking out his shriveled leg which in its especially made shoe was plainly visible, and pointing to it with his withered arm.
Although it was very pathetic and I wanted to cry, I could not help being happy for I knew in my heart by these gestures, John achieved a great victory over himself.
I was almost sure that he had never spoken of his shriveled arm and leg before in any way, and I was doubly sure that not to anyone in the world had he called particular attention to them, and he had shown them to me when all the while I was the one person to whom he wished to appear "like other men are." I managed to keep the tears back, but I think the smile upon my mouth was rather mechanical.
"Of course," I explained, "a perfect leg and arm would be better for you, but surely you must know that you have enough splendid physical qualities and mental attainments to make anyone forget your magnified affliction. With your brain, personality and fabulous wealth, you should forget everything about yourself that is not perfect."
John Meredith turned toward me impetuously. "Could you forget it, Judy," he asked, holding out his good hand.
"I really would never have thought about it at all, if you had not insisted upon dragging your condition into every conversation."
My heart was beating like a trip hammer. John came nearer and nearer. Again he was conquered by an emotion that made him forget himself.
"Judy, don't play with me and don't blame me if I am weak. I think I would not want to live, if I found out that you were playing with me." (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

Ida May Thurston was born at Leonardsville, Ohio, Dec. 16, 1859. On November 30, 1879 she married Royal Glick at Leonardsville. On July 15, 1881 a son, Ernest Ray Glick was born. This son died just as he reached manhood Oct. 6, 1904. This was a very great sorrow from which she never fully recovered. While the son was a small child they came to make their home with Uncle Adam Johnson at Franklin Grove, Illinois, where she spent very happily the years of her life that remained. After an illness of a few weeks she passed away Sept. 8, 1926.
The following brothers and sisters survive: Mrs. Jennie Powell, Seattle, Washington; Mr. Wm. Wallace, Ottawa, Kansas; Mrs. Cora Pinney, Powell, Ohio; and Charles, Clint and Orville Henry of Franklin Grove.
Her passing is a great sorrow not only in her home and family but in her large circle of friends and neighbors, who will sadly miss her many kind words and deeds. She was one of the charter members of the Light House Aid Society serving for many years most faithfully and efficiently as secretary and in every way possible helped both the society and the Light House Methodist Church of which she was ever a faithful member.
Burial was at Light House cemetery and services were conducted by Rev. Loughlin assisted by Rev. Royston of Mt. Morris.
Floral tributes were many and beautiful and mute evidence of the place she held in the hearts of the entire community.

INVENTIONS HAVE CHANGED BUDGET OF THE FARMERS

Auto, Especially, is Case of New Entry in Expense List

New York, Sept. 15.—There is a new item among major expenses of an American family today, as compared with fifty years ago. The item is the money spent on heat, autos, gasoline and labor.

Its existence was brought out by the interest which the Pacific Northwest Newspaper Association took in a recent report from Cornell Agricultural College, which gave the actual expenses of the succeeding generation of the same family. In each case the family numbered six, three children and three adults. Both lived on the same farm.

Increase Eight-Fold
The budget of this family for the year 1880 was $321.45, while for the year 1924 it was $2,563.76. The difference is not accounted for in increased living expenses. The comparison brought out many good things of life which the 1924 family enjoyed, that were unknown to the 1880 family.

In the earlier, simpler generation the major expenses were four: food, clothing, children, church. Each of these items cost in the year between $50 and $100. In the 1924 year the church dropped out as a comparative major item, even though in 1924 more was given the church than in 1880 by about 30 percent. In the modern year food, clothing and children remained three of the four major items, but the fourth was the new major, and it topped all the others. In the Cornell budget this item was denominated "General Operation." In 1880 it cost $14.98 and an 1924 $691.65.

Papers and books jumped from $2.50 to $161.70, far passing the church and showing one of the greatest percentage increases of any, although not the largest total.

The figures were gathered by Professor Ralph A. Felton, Extension Professor of Rural School Organization, who wrote W. G. Hooker, Secretary of the Pacific Northwest Newspaper Association:

Items Compared

"The father's family bought cloth by the yard, but the son's family bought ready-made clothes. The education of the son's children is costing over twice as much as his own, due to the fact that teachers' salaries have nearly tripled. The father took two papers only; the son, during the year, bought a set of Harvard Classics. The father's family light bill for the year was nine gallons of kerosene, $1.08; six lamp chimneys, 69 cents; and one wick, six cents, a total of $1.73. The son spends two dollars a month for fuel for his lighting system, while the upkeep and depreciation is $75 a year."

The professor further explained that the son has "all sorts of modern conveniences." Also that the son's doctor bill for the year 1924 "is especially large because during this year his wife had a rather serious operation at a hospital."

The figures of the two budgets follow:

1880	1924
$ 1.73 Light, including up-keep	$ 99.00
52.00 Food	447.73
98.08 Clothing	280.15
61.51 Three children	421.43
72.50 Church	65.07
6.40 Doctor and Medicine	167.80
2.80 Papers and books	161.70
Trips and Vacations	22.26
Amusements	27.65
14.96 General operations (coal, gasoline, auto, labor)	621.54
16.17 Miscellaneous	159.82
$321.45	$2,563.76

Keep in Trim!

Good Elimination Is Essential to Good Health.

THE kidneys are the blood filters. If they fail to function properly there is apt to be a retention of toxic poisons in the blood. A dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches, headaches, and dizziness are symptoms of this condition. Further evidence of improper kidney function is often found in burning or scanty passage of secretions. Each year more and more people are learning the value of Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, in this condition. Scarcely a nook or hamlet anywhere but has many enthusiastic users. Ask your neighbor!

Living Room Dominates Dutch Colonial Home

THAT typically American institution, the living room, is the dominating influence in this inviting Dutch Colonial house for the countryside or suburb. Entering into a small vestibule with a coat closet off it, and then into the hall, the visitor is at once impressed with the size of the living room on the right. It runs the entire length of the dwelling and takes up fully half the first floor plan. Opening off it, from the side or the back, depending on the dimensions of the lot or the preference of the owner, is a large open porch or sunroom.

The woman who entertains at all appreciates the convenience of having the dining room entirely separate from the living room, and where she prepares the meal herself this saves the added embarrassment of having to be both hostess and cook at the same time. Such an arrangement is provided for here. This room, like every other one in the house, has a double exposure. It has especially pleasing proportions.

One has only to study the kitchen arrangements casually to recognize how much care and thought have been put into their designing. The sink is placed in the center of one outside wall, just beneath the window. On either side of it are cupboards for china and cooking utensils. On one side of the range is space for a handy work table, on the other, the broom closet.

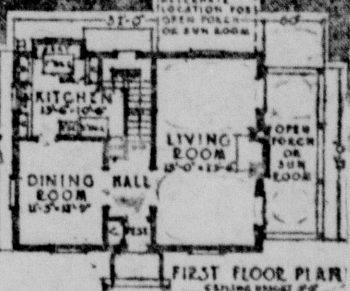

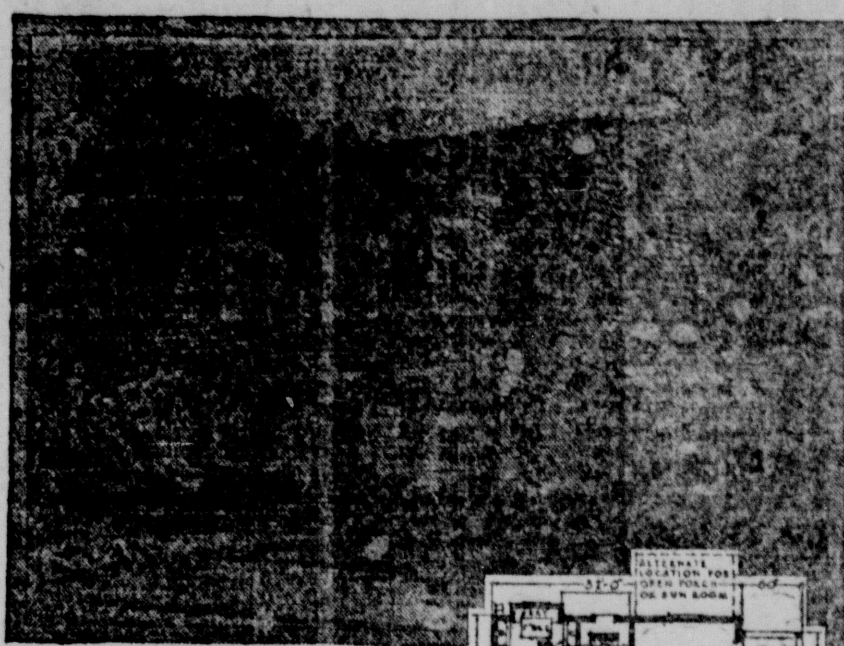

In the slight bay at the back of the room is space for a breakfast nook or small breakfast set. The refrigerator fits in a convenient corner where outside icing may be provided for if desired.

Upstairs are three unusually large bedrooms, all with cross ventilation. The two smaller rooms have ample closet space, while the large one has two closets, three windows and plenty of room for twin beds. Next to the bathroom is a linen closet and—most thoughtful of all—a small broom closet to hold that extra mop and carpet sweeper which the practical housewife buys to save running up and down stairs with them every day.

So much for the interior. The exterior has received equal attention and is a good index to the charm that lies within. The graceful slope of the gambrel roof, the slight arch to the three little dormer windows and the inviting curve of the iron railings give an atmosphere of simplicity and friendliness. The roof is of shingles, either weathered or stained. The walls are of siding and no better color scheme can be suggested than white or cream with green shutters and moss green shingles. The chimney is of common bricks and can be whitewashed if desired.

Features of the house not visible, but adding immensely to the comfort and resale value are concrete basement floor, hardwood floors, good plumbing and wall and roof insulation with celotex, all items which must be put in at the time of building and which never have to be replaced. In the matter of insulation, architects point to the greater comfort of healthful even temperatures the year round and to fuel economy in well insulated houses. As much as a twenty-five per cent saving in fuel can be effected in this way.

The over-all dimensions are twenty-five feet by thirty-two without the sun porch. The ceiling height is eight and a half feet on the first floor and eight on the second, from which the cubic contents can be easily reckoned and the probable cost estimated based on the prevailing costs of materials and labor in your locality.

WISHING

Why is it, no matter how much you may own, you always are wishing for more? From childhood way up to the time that you're grown, you wish you could add to your store. It's habit, I guess, and we all take a turn. We fall for the god of desire. We'd much rather wish than to get out and earn. A wish is a pinch to inspire.

I wonder, however, if you've stopped to think how few of your wishes are realized.

ILLINOIS DAY AT SESQUI PLANNED FOR SEPT. 21st

Fine Exhibit of State Now Complete; Lincoln is Honored

Preparations for the celebration of Illinois Day, September 21, at the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition in Philadelphia, are nearing completion. The exhibits at the Illinois Building are in two distinct divisions, separated by the main reception hall. In the right wing are agricultural exhibits in a unique and striking manner, and an Indian group in a setting representing "Starved Rock," where the Illinois tribe was exterminated by the Potawatomies in 1769. The entire left wing is devoted to a pictorial and documentary life of Lincoln, showing the fifteen principal periods in the life of the martyred President.

The Illinois State Building was designed by A. N. Robert, managing architect for the Michigan Boulevard Extension and supervising architect for Lincoln Park. The approach, dignified by the heroic size replica of the Saint Gaudens statue of Lincoln, is in the form of an imposing rotunda, open to the sky, with the spandrels between the arches ornamented by bas-relief shields five feet in diameter, representing industry, agriculture, mining and transportation. The main room is a vaulted structure in the style of the Loggia dei Lanzi in Florence, Italy. It serves as a reception room and lounge for visitors.

The erection of the building and installation of exhibits were under the general direction of Illinois State Senator James H. Forrester, chairman of the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition Commission. The Lincoln exhibit is being installed by Miss Georgia L. Osborne, acting librarian of the Illinois State Historical Library at Springfield. It comprises pictures and reproductions of letters and documents now in the Centennial Memorial Building in Springfield, erected in commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the admission of Illinois to the Union as a state. Of fifteen flat wall cases containing the principal part of the exhibit, one is devoted entirely to the Lincoln-Douglas debates. The others deal with the ancestry of Lincoln, Lincoln's youth, Lincoln at New Salem, Lincoln the surveyor, Lincoln in the Black Hawk War, his marriage and domestic life, Lincoln the lawyer, as a member of Congress, his activities in the Anti-Nebraska movement, resulting in the founding of the Republican Party in Illinois to promote the "Free Soil" campaign; Lincoln the President, the Civil War, assassination and death, and the letters of Lincoln prior to 1860. All letters and documents are so expertly reproduced that they are indistinguishable from the originals except by the closest inspection.

The Lincoln-Douglas debates wall case contains correspondence between Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas for the arrangement of the debates and the rules of the forensic contests which were destined to launch the "rail splitter" in national politics and win him the presidency. The debates took place in Ottawa, August 21, 1858; Freeport, August 21; Jonesboro, September 15, Charleston, September 18, Galesburg, October 7; Quincy, October 13, and Alton, October 15. There are eighty portraits of Lincoln in the exhibit, and a new head by the noted Los Angeles sculptor, David Edstrom. Among the exhibits in the floor cases are many rare books on Lincoln, thirty of them in foreign languages.

On two walls of the right wing are the seals of Illinois done in unshelled corn and grain, in natural colors and tinted, and there is a landscape of an Illinois farm, with buildings and fences, and a portrait of Governor Small produced by the same means. Hundreds of ears of corn, striped with red, lavender, green, white and black, reproducing Indian designs, form a broad dado and frieze.

Wheatland Plowing Match Will be the Forty-Ninth

Plainfield, Ill., Sept. 15.—(AP)—The real rural derby, the annual Wheatland plowing contest, in its 49th renewal, is set for Sept. 18 this year. A new class is announced, for boys under 17 in which either horses or tractors may be used.

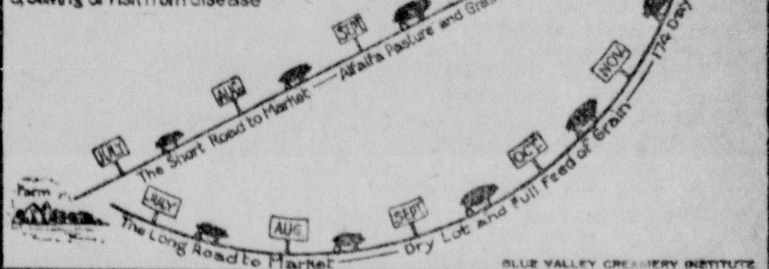

The competition is a national affair, open to anyone, and Homer Lapp of Wheatland is, at present the title holder. Twelve competitors were entered in the first match, in the fall of 1877, and 200 watched them carve their furrows across the field. Crowds since then have grown to as high as 15,000 and two classes for tractor drawn plows have been added. A clover field will be used this year to make the competition more difficult.

Alfalfa Proves Short Cut to Profits On the Farm

Why Alfalfa is Short Road to Profits

- 1 Higher prices on earlier market
- 2 Cheaper gains
- 3 Saving of corn and tankage
- 4 Saving of labor overhead and carrying charges
- 5 Saving of risk from disease

Alfalfa pasture is the foundation of cheap pork production on thousands of middle west farms, according to the Blue Valley Creamery Institute. Experiments in different states have shown some remarkable returns from grazing hogs on this kind of pasture. Typical of these is one conducted at the Iowa station.

A group of spring hogs in dry lot reached the desirable market weight of 225 pounds in 174 days, consuming in this period an average of 396.33 pounds shelled corn, 45.51 pounds meat meal tankage and 27 pound salt, a total of 442.11 pounds feed for each 100 pounds gain. These hogs had pasture whatever, but were simply fed on concentrated feeds in a spacious dry lot. They were sold at $10.00 a cwt. on December 8.

The same number of hogs on alfalfa pasture, receiving the same grain feed, were ready for market at the 225 pound weight in 146 days. They went to market November 31, nearly a month before those on dry lot, and brought $11.75 a cwt. While on alfalfa pasture, they required for 100 pounds gain $81.28 pounds corn, 12.76 pounds tankage, and 21 pound salt, a total of $94.25 pounds feed.

Not only did the alfalfa-fed hogs bring a better price on account of going to market earlier in the marketing season, but there was a big saving for every 100 pounds gain made on alfalfa pasture as compared to the dry lot. The saving in corn for every 100 pounds gain was 15 pounds plus the more important saving of tankage, which amounted to 32.75 pounds. Other appreciable savings on the alfalfa-pasture hogs in going to market earlier were the risk of loss from disease, overhead and carrying charges.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The LANES are an average American family, hard up, but ambitious to better themselves. There is MRS. LANE, fat, middle-aged, a chronic semi-invalid, not too good-tempered. JIM LANE, the husband and father, a carpenter, who hopes to become a contractor on a small scale.

JUNIOR, 21, nicknamed Long Lane, lovable, irresponsible, rather wild. FAITH, 20, mainstay of the family, tall, splendid looking, but not pretty.

CHEERY, 18, a typical flapper. JOY, 9, who is always making embarrassing remarks, and who knows everyone's affairs.

When the story opens both Junior and Cheery have lost their jobs. Cheery maintaining that she had to leave her employer because he "got fresh" with her. Mr. Lane asks Faith, the stay-at-home drudge, to cook an especially nice dinner, since he has invited BOB HATHAWAY, a young business man with whom he hopes to land a contract to build two bungalows. Cheery receives a telephone call from CHESTER HART, who has been Faith's "steady," and arranges that he is to pick her up a block from the house so that Faith will not see them.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

"O H. FAITH!" Cheery, looking as cool as a water lily to her petal-skirted green and gandy, her vivid face framed in a drooping-brimmed Lehigh hat, popped into the kitchen where Faith was at the sink, scraping egg breakfast dishes.

"Be an angel and clean my pink georgette! I've got to rush downtown and get my application in at the agency. May get a try-out today, you know? I won't be home for lunch."

Joy, swathed in one of Faith's long aprons, flitted her tea towel alarmingly close to Cheery's carefully tinted face. "I heard you at the telephone, Cheery Lane! You was flirting with Chester Hart! He's going to take her to town in his car, Faith!"

"You little Hart!" Cheery seized her small sister by the shoulders and shook her fiercely. "I'll make Moth attend to you, you little devil! Don't you believe a word she says, Faith. I wouldn't lift a finger to—"

"Oh, it's all right, Faith!" Faith said, and thumped a stack of plates into the sink so hard that they rattled. "If Chester likes you better than he does me, you can have him! Don't think for a minute that I want him—"

"Well, neither do I!" Cheery laughed with relief. "He's a funny old fat-head, isn't he? And his hands perspire—ugh! Didn't you loathe it when he tried to paw you, Faith?"

"He knew better than to try it," Faith said grimly. "You'd better run along, Cheery. There'll be a dozen girls ahead of you. Bring me a skein of dark red embroidery floss, won't you? I need it for Joy's tan linen dress. She wants to wear it the first day of school."

Mrs. Lane had settled herself grudgingly at a window of the dining room—a window which commanded a view of Myrtle Street, on which their door—the back door—room house stood. In her drooping puffed hands was her inevitable tatting.

From the dining room, too, Mrs. Lane was able to keep her eye on Faith's activities, and to make her criticisms, advice and general comments heard, no matter where Faith was working.

When the dishes were done, the rickety old gas range swabbed off and the kitchen floor swept, Faith was ready to tackle the bed making and cleaning.

"Mom, can I go over to Grace's? Her dog's got four new puppies, and

But as she tore the letters to bits, she dropped angry, hurt tears upon them.

she said she'd give me one—" Joy demanded shrilly.

"Oh, for goodness sake, yes! It's just go, go, go, from morning to night! But I'll wear you out if you bring one of them puppies into this house. We got enough hungry mouths to feed as it is. Now, dry up! Not a word out of you!"

Faith began her housecleaning at the living room, smoothed the rumpled sheets, clamped down the fat pillow which Junior's head had pummeled during the hot night, and breathing heavily with the effort, folded up the davenport.

An empty candy box on the floor, spewing out its frilled paper cups. Why did every last one of them throw things on the floor for her to pick up? Cigarette stubs in a cracked saucer—if Dad had seen them, Junior would have been given a stiff cuffing down, even if he was twenty-one.

"Mrs. Mitchell has been standing on her front porch for the last half hour, talking to a smart-aleck I ask agent," Mrs. Lane called out to Faith. "If her husband could see how she cuts her eyes and flashes her dimples at every young squirt that comes along—"

"She'll hear you, Mother," Faith warned her, as she flitted a cedar-oiled rag over the "library table"—the broken-springed morris chair—Dad's favorite, though he didn't have much time to enjoy it, for one of Cheery's young men was always sprawling in it.

"I guess I know what I'm doing!" Mrs. Lane said tartly. "He's going, I do believe! And she give him an order for a book. Don't answer the doorbell if he comes here, Faith."

"Won't!" Faith promised her rather grimly. "I wish you'd make Cheery give you the ten dollars for last month's installment on the piano," she continued, as her old rag went carefully over the cheap piano that Cheery had bought "on time" and which Mr. Lane was paying for; the long piano bench, ringed and stained and burnt with cigarette ends.

"What are you doing in there, Faith?" Mrs. Lane, who had ignored the remark about the installment on the piano, demanded after a bit.

"Taking down the curtains," Faith called. "They're a sight—yellow with sunburn and dust. I don't see how I'm going to have time to wash and iron them by night, but Dad's counting on making a good impression on his Bob Hathaway."

She took her armful of dusty curtains to the kitchen, piled them into a zinc wash tub, sprinkled them with soap powder, and left them to soak in hot water until the rest of the house was cleaned.

Then, feeling that there were not enough minutes in the day ahead of her for half the work that had to be done, she hurried into her parents' bedroom. She picked up from the floor her mother's enormous, tatting-trimmed "domestic" nightgown, and her father's right shirt, and hung them in the closet. Then she yanked sheets and pillows from the bed, and with a mighty heave of her strong young arms, turned the mattress.

Faith spread the rumpled sheets smooth, then from the top shelf of the closet took a fresh, starched bedspread, gay with appliqued morning glories—Faith's own handwork—and made the bed look dainty and inviting. Dad would be sure to bring young Hathaway in here to show him the picture of himself in the Elks convention at St. Louis. Cheery wouldn't let it hang in the living room. With vigorous strokes of her broom, Faith swept the faded Japanese matting, then wielded her chair cloth over the bed, dresser, chairs and pictures.

Then, with a feeling of resentment rising hotly in her throat, she went into Cheery's room. It was always in a state of wildest disorder after Cheery had dressed—two or three pairs of slippers kicking about the brown-painted floor; the three small rugs: rose-pink chenille awry, doubled back on themselves, speckled with powder; silk stockings flung over chair back and footboard of the bed; curling hairs from Cheery's bright, head thick on the powder-crusted, rouged-stained dresser scarf; dresser drawers hanging far out, draped with silk underwear and un-matched stockings; a slightly soiled peach silk kimono, half on the low chair, half on the floor; the pink georgette for Faith to clean and press hanging limply over a chair-back.

Why wouldn't Cheery at least make her own bed? As Faith seized the rumpled pillow, a letter fell to the floor. She picked it up, looked at the dashing handwriting below the picture of a Chicago hotel on the face of the envelope. On the back, in the space for the return address, was a name Faith had never heard Cheery mention—Albert Ettleson, Care of The Tip-Top Gas Range Company, Indianapolis, Indiana.

So Cheery had been "picking up" a traveling man, as if she didn't have enough home-town boys hanging around the house, keeping her out so late every night that she couldn't hold a job to save her life!

But there was envy in Faith's heart as she dropped the letter into Cheery's littered top dresser-drawer. How did she do it? Boys had buzzed around her like bees around a honey-pot since her grammar school days. And Faith had had only two or three sweethearts in the five years she had been allowed to "go with the boys"—Benny Gorman, whom the other girls wouldn't have anything to do with; Arthur Higgins, who was working his way through college, but whom Cheery made fun of because he was the son of a butcher; and Chester Hart. Now Cheery had vamped Chester away from her.

Faith's footsteps dragged as she went into the room she shared with her. Without intending to do so, and despising herself for her weakness, she took a small package of letters from her own bureau drawer and sat down on her unmade bed to read them. Not many of them—Chester had been out of town very long! But as she tore the letters to bits, she dropped angry, hurt tears upon them.

"What are you doing in there, Faith?" Mrs. Lane, who had ignored the remark about the installment on the piano, demanded after a bit.

"Taking down the curtains," Faith called. "They're a sight—yellow with sunburn and dust. I don't see how I'm going to have time to wash and iron them by night, but Dad's counting on making a good impression on his Bob Hathaway."

of heartbreak over the passing of the late notable.

Argentina's becoming Apartment Dwellers

Buenos Aires, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Apartment house life is gaining rapidly in popularity among the Argentines. One of the chief attractions is the central heating system, almost unknown in Buenos Aires a few years ago. Argentines claim the winters here have become increasingly severe in recent years and that this explains why so many detached houses, without any heating facilities, are being deserted for steam heated apartments.

One newspaper has begun a campaign in favor of heating the railway stations, street cars, subways and schools, pointing out that "every year it is becoming colder to the great discomfort of the public."

Lighthouse is Memorial for Wife and Daughter

Oakland, Calif., Sept. 15.—(AP)—A fifty foot stone monument surmounted by a light which can be seen miles at sea has been erected by A. A. Moore, retired attorney, on Mission Peak, near Mission San Jose, as a memorial to Moore's wife and daughter.

An electric plant was built to supply current for the light.

CHICAGO'S PLAN FOR "BEAUTIFUL CITY" PROGRESS

Is Probably Most Pretentious of Any in Entire World

Chicago.—(AP)—Virtually every city in the land with a civic urge has a civic center planned or building.

Chicago, the sprawling midwestern metropolis, is no exception. Its civic center plan is linked with a city beautiful movement, probably the most pretentious in the world.

Millions of dollars have been expended in a beauty and utility program and the subject is one so vast and far reaching that an entire book devoted to it has been used in the schools, here for years.

Old Center Replaced

But while many features of the "Chicago plan" have been completed or are under way, the civic center is still a hazy dream of the future. In the original plans the civic center was planned about a huge open plaza west of the Chicago river, this center to be the focal point of all the related developments.

The area selected is in a dingy, run down section, crowded with cramped tenements, small manufactories and "flop houses." But while this civic center plan still looms in the offing, a new center of public and semi-public activity is building just west of the river. Here on a wide new boulevard, replacing old canal street, has been erected the huge developments associated with the new union station.

Public Buildings Scattered

On the same street a couple of blocks away is another great railroad terminal, that of the Chicago & Northwestern, while efforts are being made to place the new Chicago post-office on territory between the two.

Chicago buildings usually associated with a civic center plan are now widely scattered. The combined city hall and county building, an immense granite structure in the Roman style, is in the heart of the loop. The post office, which Chicago outgrew before it was finished, is a half mile away. The art institute is over on Michigan boulevard, and the new Field museum a mile distant in Grant park. The Cook county jail is beyond the north branch of the Chicago river.

Belgium Postpones Plan to Stabilize Currency

Brussels, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Stabilization of Belgium's currency has been temporarily postponed, the cabinet apparently fearing that France's plan for the financial restoration of her own franc might again interfere.

The cabinet council today unanimously decided not to consider the recent offer by Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian financier, of a loan of $50,000,000 free of interest for two years.

The cabinet members did not deny a report that the government intends to create a new gold franc, but the authorities are informed that plans for such action are far from complete.

President and Wife to Leave Camp on Saturday

Paul Smith's, N. Y., Sept. 15.—(AP)—President Coolidge's engagement list was blank today and indications were that it would remain so during the remaining days of his Adirondack vacation.

Every one who has met the President since he came here has been impressed by his enthusiasm for the outdoor life and the benefits he has derived from it.

Unless there is a last minute change in plans, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge, who are now alone in camp except for their servants, will leave Saturday morning.

Ireland is Candidate for Seat in League of Nations

Geneva, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Ireland's candidacy for a non-permanent seat in the council of the League of Nations is "formal and definite." This statement was made by Desmond Fitzgerald, foreign minister of the Irish Free State.

The Latin-American caucus sub-committee labored until early this morning without being able to decide whether Uruguay or Salvador should be the Latin American group's candidate for the third non-permanent seat with one year's tenure of it.

British Cruiser Ordered to Sail for China Today

Hankow, China, Sept. 15.—(AP)—"Red" Cantonese forces made another attack on Wuchang Monday night, but again were repulsed. The bombardment killed a number of non-combatants. The food shortage is acute.

A relief expedition is being organized to rescue missionaries and other foreigners at Wuchang.

Devenport, England, Sept. 15.—(AP)—The British cruiser Caryfort has been ordered to leave for China this afternoon.

Zoning Laws to Affect Human Moods By Change In Styles of Buildings

ZONING laws in the principal cities of the United States have started a change in the prevailing style of business buildings which may determine whether the American of the next decade is a cheerful or a gloomy person. This is the double possibility seen by most of the leading architects today.

Deadly monotony, jarring chaos, or harmonious beauty may come out of the new trend, which so far is largely in its formative stage. Whatever style the new architecture takes, those who have studied the problem declare it will have its effect upon the people who must look upon it daily.

Among the chief causes of the change at this time, are the requirements that walls can be built only to certain heights, above which they must be set back further from the street, giving the effect of a terrace, or huge steps, so that more light and air are available for occupants of the lower offices.

Architects predict a tendency, particularly in the more crowded districts, to build all-walls to the maximum height allowed, forming a straight skyline, or at least a straight cornice line at the first level.

The situation is compared to that which prevailed when most of New York City's famous "brownstones" were built. Four stories was found to be the most convenient height, with the result that monotonous rows of four-story brownstones stretch for block after block, almost without decoration to relieve the monotony. In the period of reaction which followed every builder sought to be different from every other, so that the effect of each was lost. Parts of Fifth Avenue are cited as instances of this chaotic construction.

The problem now, in the opinion of architects, is to avoid both of these evils. With the heights largely determined by law and the demands to use all available space, it is hoped to avoid the depressing effects of monotony by the inclusion of brighter color designs in such materials as terra cotta, and by the use of fitting ornamentation at the various cornice lines.

Although the type of the building practically prevents such decorations as the old overhanging cornices, it is pointed out that some pleasing design is needed at the set-back lines because these parts of the roofing are visible to the occupants of the upper stories of the building.

Interior decorators have recognized the effect of surroundings on the individual's good, and architects now say that exterior appearances, as important, or more so, because of the greater number of persons affected.

Order "Quick Fire Coke" Now for Next Winter

It is a Clean Fuel

The famous "QUICK FIRE COKE" is cleaner and better than hard coal.

When this coke is put in the coal bins there is no dirt nor dust, as with soft coal; nor slate and rock, as with hard coal. Both mean waste of heating elements and damage to the furnishings and interior decorations of the home.

Burn "QUICK FIRE COKE" and your furnace will not puff clouds of smoke, soot and gas, as with soft coal. You will have little ash, because this coke is as nearly pure carbon with all the waste, dust, and dirt-making elements removed, as it is possible to make it.

The particular housewife who used this coke for heating, thru one winter, will never go back to the use of soft coal. "QUICK FIRE COKE" saves the endless sweeping, dusting, and scrubbing that is so necessary when soft coal is used for heating.

The price of "QUICK FIRE COKE" is always lowest in the summer months, so you would save money by filling your bins now, before the fall rush begins. This by-product coke does not deteriorate. Whether stored in bins or piled up out of doors, it never loses any part of its heating value. Always order by the registered trade name—"QUICK FIRE COKE"—to be sure that you get the very highest quality of by-product coke it is possible to make. With "QUICK FIRE COKE" your curtains, draperies, rugs and wall paper will be cleaner at the end of winter than they would be in a few weeks of burning soft coal. The Indiana Coke & Gas Company, Terre Haute, Indiana, makers of this famous by-product coke, sends to any householder, on request, an interesting booklet on "HOW TO BURN COKE". Write for it today. Call up your dealer today and get acquainted with the merits of "QUICK FIRE COKE". It is not a mere trademark, but a guarantee of efficiency, quality and service.

"QUICK FIRE COKE" is sold and recommended by

IN NEW YORK

New York.—The dirt begrimed, moss tinted crumbling old tombstones of Trinity church-yard, which form the incongruous approach to modern Wall street, are perhaps the outstanding attraction of New York along with Brooklyn bridge, the Woolworth building and the Broadway lights.

Innumerable paragraphs have been written of the stenographers who gather at lunch time and spill their sandwich crumbs on the earth that holds the dust of Robert Fulton, Gen. Kearney and Alexander Hamilton.

The tombstones of these great ones have been scanned by numberless millions. Then there are the rows of toppling slabs which bear little known names and these barely legible.

Among these you will find the name "Charlotte Temple," and there in lies one of the strange legends of the churchyard.

Some years ago a ghoul removed the plaque that once graced the gravestone and thus cast the shadow of uncertainty over dates and data.

Now back in the nineties a certain Mrs. Rowson wrote a novel entitled "Charlotte Temple. A True Tale." It told of a girl who eloped from England with an Englishman of rank, of how he deserted her after betrayal and, finally, of her death from heartbreak. It told of her burial at Trinity and the remorse of her betrayer, who pleaded with the girl's father to kill him and when met by refusal came week upon week to sob on her grave.

Maybe true—maybe not! Nevertheless there is a grave in Trinity with the name Charlotte Temple graven on the stone.

Throughout the summer there was reported a steady increase of resorts just east of Broadway where "real beer" was to be had with meals.

But the most ambitious effort to date is announced by a card which comes to my desk.

It announces a "$2.00 Beer Dinner."

Diners, it is announced, will be provided with a nice "growler" or bucket full of beer and, that the right crowd may be obtained, salesmen are going round selling meal tickets for the opening days.

The place, an old saloon, has been revamped and, I am told, $8,000 spent for new fixtures.

So this is prohibition!

Speaking of bottleg! Liquor is not the only commodity illicitly peddled.

Recently a blue law was passed compelling New York barbers to close shop on Sunday.

Now a number of places operate with side door entrances and drawn blinds and signals, while itinerant shavers have a "route" of customers, going from place to place in the good old fashioned way and charge from 50 cents up per shave.

New York.—See-sawing up and down Broadway, I saw Lya de Putti, the newest of the very wicked screen ladies to come from Europe.

And though all the male eyes at Broadway premiere were upon her, she showed no signs of vanity.

Nor was she so much as accompanied by a handsome escort.

Instead was the solid looking German girl who acts as her interpreter.

Saw Lowell Sherman, the actor, with the largest monocle I have ever seen balanced between eyelash and cheek, and so worried was I that it would fall off that I paid little heed to the performance, marveling at his dexterity.

Saw Louise Brooks, ensnared in the seat of honor at the city's most popular night club.

And only yesterday, it seems she was dancing in a Broadway chorus.

The movies claimed her and just as stardom hove in sight, her director fell in love with her and that was that.

Another of those Broadway Cinderella romances.

Gloria Swanson, looking fragily lovely in a French creation of black tulle by the inevitable Count "Hank" Mary Pickford, back from a European trip, and quite mature it seemed to me, and most charming in this grown up role.

And it caused me to wonder when and how she will be able to escape the "golden curl" pictures and appear as the actress I'm sure she is.

Mary Brian, the "Wendy" of "Peter Pan," no longer a gangling girl, attending theater with her ever-present mother.

Jimmy Walker, the "boyish" mayor of this metropolis, standing in a theater lobby, his straw hat cocked at rakish angle, a cigarette hanging from his mouth, swapping wise cracks, and looking for all the world like a song and dance man waiting to go on with his act.

A Valentine memorial song makes its appearance already on Broadway.

Gertrude Ederly found the "tin pin alley" writers had beat her to Broadway with a song in which the name "Trudy" is made to rhyme with "beauty."

But then these things are done in a hurry.

Saw Millicent Rogers, otherwise the Countess Salm, "throwing a party" at one of the leading night clubs, and there seemed to be no sign

COMING BOUT IS RICKARD'S 17th TITLE MATCHING

Will Also Probably Be Biggest Match Tex Has Promoted

Philadelphia, Sept. 15—(AP)—The Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight championship battle in the great Sesqui-Centennial Stadium here September 22 will be the seventh and probably the biggest title spectacle Tex Rickard has staged.

The New York promoter reached the high mark for boxing when he staged the Dempsey-Carpenter "Battle of the Century" in the big wooden auditorium at Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City, five years ago. That spectacle drew a crowd of 30,000 that paid more than $1,600,000 to see the champion's four-round knockout of the colorful Frenchman but Rickard expects the forth-coming struggle to eclipse these figures.

Twenty Years Promoter
The promoter's expectations are that a crowd of more than 120,000 will part with approximately $2,000,000 for the evening's entertainment, which would lift the event to an unprecedented level for any sports event.

It has been almost twenty years to the day that Rickard made his first plunge in pugilistic promotion, his initial venture being the famous Gans-Nelson lightweight championship event at Goldfield, Nev., on September 3, 1906. Since that day Tex has mounted to a position as the foremost promoter of professional sports in the world, the head of a big corporation whose business in New York annually runs well into the millions.

Rickard's first heavyweight fight was the Jeffries-Johnson bout in 1910 at Reno, where it was shifted after being barred from San Francisco. That fight drew a record "gate" at the time, $270,000, the top price being $50. The only fights for which tickets have been priced as high since then were the Dempsey-Willard and Dempsey-Carpenter bouts.

Huge Gate Receipts
In six previous heavyweight title battles Rickard has promoted the gate receipts have aggregated close to $4,000,000, of which $2,500,000 cleared through the turnstiles for the last two spectacles the promoter has staged.

The record receipts for these fights follow:
Johnson-Jeffries at Reno, Nev., 1910 $270,000
Willard-Moran at Mad. Sq. Garden, 1916 151,000
Dempsey-Willard at Toledo, O., 1919 452,000
Dempsey-Brennan at Mad. Sq. Gard., 1920 200,000
Dempsey-Carpenter at Jersey City, 1921 1,626,000
Dempsey-Firpo at Polo Grounds, N. Y., 1923 1,118,000
Total $3,887,000

Tunney Feels Great as He Ends One Day Vacation
Stroudsburg, Pa., Sept. 15—(AP)—Gene Tunney professed to feel great today from a day's rest yesterday. He looks for snappy workouts with Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul light heavyweight, who is making his Stroudsburg debut. Tunney is pleased that his manager has hired Jimmy Bronson as a second for the Dempsey bout.

Manager Gibson has ceased worrying over the possibility of Tunney becoming too fine. Frequent recreation periods are taking care of that.

Dempsey on Last Stretch of Training for Fight
Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 15—(AP)—With the gates closed to the public, Jack Dempsey started on his final stretch of training today.
Guards were stationed to prevent anyone to enter, with the exception of newspaper correspondents.

Dempsey will work out before the critics again tomorrow and on Friday he will take another layoff. Then on Saturday, the workouts will become strictly private, with the few newspapermen barred.

REDS TAKE LEAD IN NATIONAL AS CARDINALS LOAF

Hornsby's Men Half a Game Behind in Red Hot Race

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Cincinnati today led St. Louis by half a game in the National League race.

The Reds rode rough shod over the Robins yesterday for the fourth consecutive time and won by 5-1. Idleness gave the Cardinals no opportunity to keep abreast of the Reds but the Pirates beat the Giants 5-0 and are two and a half games from the top.

Cincinnati has eleven games to go, the Cardinals twelve.

By his own request, Carl Mays assumed the pitching burden and let Brooklyn down with five hits.
Ray Kremer held the Giants helpless, yielding but four hits.
The Phillies relegated the Cubs to three games behind Pittsburgh, winning 5-4. Hack Wilson, Chicago's star outfielder and leading home run hitter in the National League, was hit with a pitched ball behind the left ear. He was removed to a hospital unconscious.

American League diamonds were vacant, rain washing out the only scheduled meeting of the Athletics at Chicago. A six game crucial series between Cleveland and New York starts today.

SIDELIGHTS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The first major league game to go into discard was the Philadelphia-Chicago American League game which was called off on account of rain. There is no chance of these clubs meeting again this season.

The Chicago Cubs received a hard blow when Hack Wilson, leading home run clouter of the league, was hit on the head by Carlson of the Phillies. The injury may keep him out of the game for some time.

Johnny Moken had a perfect day at bat—three hits in three times up.

Ray Kremer shut out the Giants with four hits.
Carl Mays, anxious to go the Reds back in first place, asked Manager Hendricks for an opportunity to pitch out of turn and allowed the Robins only five hits.

GRIDIRON FANS SEEK NEW HERO FROM AMATEURS

Public Enthusiased Over Game; Record Year is Anticipated

Chicago, Sept. 15—(AP)—The football youths of the higher halls of learning, who soon will begin their violent endeavors on the home campus, will come under the intense scrutiny of the football enthused public, which is searching for a new hero, and the first husky lad to tuck the inflated leather egg under his arm, twinkle his legs down the field, cutting a puzzling geometric design through the opposition, will be seized upon as the candidate by the inspired college authors as well as the ticket hunting public—provided the distance covered is that of thrilling yardage. A successor is being sought for "Red" Grange, the Illini star who originated the starring vehicle "From Ghost Ball to Important Money", and his Chilkoot Pass on the way to the gold fields was the gridiron.

The economic possibilities of the headlines in football circles is unlimited, what with the professionals coming to the front and the movie magnates ready to exploit the popular public figure, but one must be able to bear a searching investigation into one's past. The public will want to know if the latest star drives a milk wagon and works as a timber cruiser in the summer, and also, can he furnish baby pictures of himself. If this investigation into the past revealed that he played baseball in summer for filthy lucre, there would be tragedy.

Several of the Big Ten teams have candidates for the vacancy created by the Illinois strawberry blonde's passing. Out at Iowa they have "Cowboy Nick" Kutsch, a hard running half back who ruined Illinois' last year. Ohio State comes forward with Emil Marek, a ball carrier who emersoned from the Cedar Rapids High school champions. "Moon" Baker, a player with some of the gridiron attributed to Grange himself, will do or die for Northwestern and Michigan has Bonny Friedman, a backfield star of the first water.

The sophomores who are coming up to try for the team, and one of whom may be the latest idol, are the algebraic unknown quantity. There usually is a dearth of news regarding the freshman stars of the year procession.

Dixon Browns Will Play in Freeport Next Sunday

Freeport—The baseball game between the Dixon Independents and the Dixon Browns scheduled for Sunday afternoon was called off owing to unfavorable weather conditions and because of the bad condition of the grounds as a result of the recent rains. The Browns will appear here next Sunday against the locals, weather conditions permitting.

State Takes Up Probe of Poisoning of Race Horse

Chicago, Sept. 15—(AP)—The State of Illinois today resumed the lead in the investigation of the death of Captain Hal, $100,000 race horse, which died at Lincoln Fields track last week, the fourth thoroughbred poisoned this summer.

Warrants charging G. C. McIntosh, a Louisville veterinary with contributing to the death of the horse through unlicensed treatment, resulted from the report of a state inspector yesterday that he found poison in a dose prescribed by McIntosh.

Johnston Has Chance to Regain the Crown

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 15—(AP)—Little Bill Johnston has a good chance to regain the national tennis title he last held in 1919 when beaten by Bill Tilden.

Now Johnston has returned to old time form as evidenced in his winning Davis cup battles and Tilden has an injured knee.

The Bills cannot meet before the final of the national championship now under way, because they are seeded in opposite halves of the draw.

Tilden was bracketed for the third round today with Arnold W. Jones of Providence and Johnston with Edward Jacobs, Baltimore.

Ten Preliminaries for Big Fight are Planned

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 15—(AP)—Ten heavyweights and light heavyweights will engage in six round bouts as preliminaries to the contest between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney here on Sept. 23. The preliminaries will be:

Mattie Munn, Lincoln, Neb., vs Hugo Clements, Boston.
George Godfrey, Philadelphia vs Bob Lawson, Oklahoma.
Martin Burke, New Orleans vs Yale Okum, New York City.
Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia vs Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul.
Knute Hansen, Minnesota vs Johnny Risko, Cleveland.

ILLINOIS BOXING BOARD CALLS OFF THURSDAY'S BOUT

Takes Title Away From Rosenberg and Gives It to Taylor

Chicago, Sept. 15—(AP)—Deprived of his world's bantamweight title yesterday, Charlie (Phil) Rosenberg had no recourse today from the drastic decision of the recently created Illinois State Boxing Commission, from whose action there is no appeal.

So far as Illinois is concerned the world's bantamweight crown rests on the head of Butte Taylor, blonde fighter of Terra Haute, who was proffered it by the State Commission, which also called off the contemplated bout between Taylor and Rosenberg.

Commission's Stand.

The commissioners assigned as a reason for the action, the continued failure of Rosenberg and his manager Harry Segal to post a $12,500 forfeit for the championship match and "the injection of political and other influence pertaining to our appointment of the referee."

Chairman Hunkle of the commission declined to comment on the report that the body was taking any official cognizance of heavy betting on the bout in its edict.

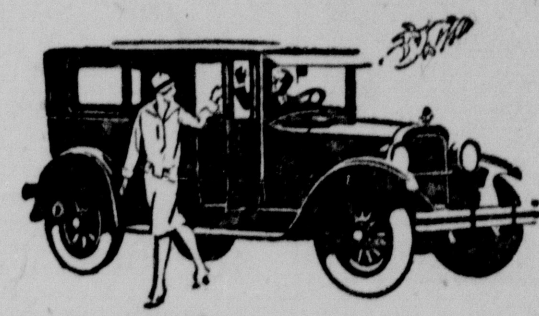

"Segal and Rosenberg in our estimation are not the caliber of men who belong in boxing," the commissioners said, "and their unsportsmanlike attitude coupled with their disregard of our laws and rules compelled us to take this action."

When informed of the decision, Segal declared he had not been seriously concerned over the forfeiture matter and had intended to make the payment tomorrow.

Johnston Wins Second Atlantic League Title

Johnstown, Pa., Sept. 15—(AP)—For the second consecutive year Johnstown has won the middle Atlantic League championship. Johnstown yesterday defeated Fairmont, W. Va., 2-0 to take the post season series four games to two.

The VANITY CASE

CHAPTER XLVIII

"Of course, that's how it came about. I found I was making oodles of money in my financial deals. So that gave Sam Anderson free scope to do what he chose over the side of the bridge. While, over in the artist settlement, the decent prices I got for my pictures and the fact that Myra had money, kept things going in the bungalow."

"And then?" Truitt's voice was accusing now.

"And then," Heath looked about him, "and then—why, then that snake-in-the-grass, Larry Inman, came into my home and broke it up."

"Don't blame him. You had ceased to love your wife before he came."

"A lot you know about it. Whipper-snapper that you are! He came between us, my wife turned her affections to him, and I thought I'd just drop out and let them have each other. And then—and then, he killed her!"

"No, that won't do, Heath," Mott put in, "we've got your written confession. You killed your wife. Why did you do it?"

"Because she would have that awful bunch of old glass about. I couldn't stand for it, and so—"

"Try again, Heath," Truitt said, "why did you kill her?"

"Because she knew my secret!" he blurted out. "Because just as I planned to disappear and make it seem like a suicide, leaving her to her Larry, she told me she knew all about my Sam Anderson role! Just as I had everything finished that had taken years to accomplish, all ready for flight and a calm, happy life of my own here, just then she up and tells me she knows it all. I was beside myself with rage and disappointment. I saw red, I suppose, and that confounded bottle stood there, and half-demented I took it up and let fly at her. I didn't mean to kill her. I didn't mean anything—I just hit out in despair."

"And then you used the make-up on her."

"Yes, I did. As I say, I wasn't quite myself. I was a little confused, and somehow it seemed to me she wasn't really dead,—couldn't be really dead."

"And Bunney's vanity case was right there, and I was fairly obsessed to see how she'd look with a little color in her cheeks. It improved her so, I went on, fascinated with the results. I worked like an artist, as if I were doing a lovely picture—I felt like that. Then, as a final touch I draped the scarf and added the red beads, and she was a picture! Oh, Myra! If you had looked like that in life, I should have adored you."

"Have you no shame? No regret? No penitence?"

Heath looked scornfully at Truitt, who had spoken out of the fullness of his heart.

"You are not my Father Confessor. You have tracked me down, but I am not confessing to you. I planned it so wonderfully. Over here, I have discreet servants, trained to the point of perfection. I could come and go as I chose, even changing my facial effects en route, if I pleased. And now—"

"Then it was you whom the servant saw leaving the Heath house that night—"

"Yes, of course. I came straight over here, let myself in, and went to bed, and got up in the morning as Anderson. My servants here are never surprised at my unexpected appearance."

"And that night, on your porch," Cunningham mused, "you came to see me as Heath, and later turned up as Anderson."

"Certainly. Don't bore me with reminiscent details. I tell you the whole game was easy, until," he laughed, "until they wanted to put us both up for candidates for the election. I could manage lots of it, but I couldn't run against myself. That's what made me conclude to bring the thing to a climax, though I didn't plan for the climax that took place."

"That'll do, now," Mott said, heavily. His brain was whirling with this unaccustomed burden of thought. "You come along, and tell the rest of those reminiscences to yourself in a cell."

He went to the door and whistled, and unresisting, Heath was taken away to his doom, his fate, which he had brought upon himself.

"However did you do it, Steve?" Bunney asked for the twentieth time.

"Oh, it was just luck. When I heard the man reappeared so often, I felt sure he was hiding near by. Then, as I couldn't dope out a hiding place, I was forced to the conclusion that he was hiding in some other man's skin. I prepared for a long search, for I was sure that was the solution. To start with I went over and searched not only the Heath house, but especially Heath's rooms for personal data of his habits. I got that man and his ways down pretty fine."

"Then the luck was, that when I went over to Anderson's that night, best if he didn't have just that same see me as Heath, and later turned up as Anderson."

"But how did you know he would come over to Heath's that night?"

"That was a long shot. But I had my suspicions roused even then. And when Anderson quoted that line, 'For each man kills the thing he loves,' I gave him a look which he caught. That line is from Oscar Wilde's 'Ballad of Reading Gaol,' and I figured that if that book was in evidence at Heath's it would be a point and also, and more important, if he had caught on to my gaze at him, and I thought he had, he'd very likely come over himself and take it away. And, as the man said, 'also which he done!'"

"Then he put that awful card up and lighted the candles and everything," said Bunney, musingly. "Oh, how could I ever think I cared for him!"

"He was not quite himself, I think," said Truitt, charitably, "when he set up the card and all that. And as for your momentary infatuation, my dear, if I were you, I'd forget it, and transfer my affections to a certain youth I wot of. Now you are off with the old love, can't you be on with the new?"

"I can try," said Bunney, smiling, and Tod whispered, "Come along out on the porch, by ourselves, and I'll give you a few lessons."

THE END

Franco-Germany Treaty

Called a "Small Mouse"

Paris, Sept. 15—(AP)—Twenty months of negotiations, often interrupted but resumed at the last minute, have resulted in a Franco-German commercial treaty, which the French are now declaring to be a very small mouse indeed as the outcome of such mountainous labors.

The defects found in it are that it only lasts six months and that it only deals with secondary products. With the exception of automobiles, the leading products of the contracting countries are not to be found in the treaty. There is no mention of German machinery, chemical or metallurgical goods and very little of French wines.

Ludendorff, War Lord of Germany, Married

Munich, Bavaria, Sept. 14—(AP)—General Ludendorff, who was quarter master general of the German Imperial army in the World War, was married at noon today to Frau Dr. Mathilde von Kennitz. The bride was mentioned in the first Frau Ludendorff in the divorce proceedings in July. Ludendorff is 61 years old.

Furniture Makers Face Another Federal Suit

Washington, Sept. 15—(AP)—Another broadside was touched off today by the Federal Trade Commission in its war against the methods of some manufacturers in advertising and selling veneered furniture. Twenty-seven firms in Grand Rapids, Mich., many of them doing a nationwide business, were accused of unfairness in complaints docketed by the commission.

A material made from the fiber of sunflower stalks has been developed by an English inventor as a substitute for straw in weaving hats. It is light in weight, flexible and airy.

Galesburg Tailor is Visited by Robbers

Galesburg—Three robbers looted Ed. Fahnestrom's tailor shop at Victoria early today, carrying off his entire stock of winter clothing, valued at $2,000. Fourteen overcoats and a number of leather jackets and suits were included in the loot.

SHE KNEW

"Do you understand the nature of an oath, madam?" asked the attorney of the fair witness.

"I'll tell the world I do. I married a sailor," was the emphatic response.—Judge.
